Ioana Marinescu is an assistant professor of economics at the University of Pennsylvania School of Social Policy & Practice, and a Faculty Research Fellow at the National Bureau of Economic Research. Her research expertise includes antitrust & the labor market, the universal basic income, unemployment insurance, and employment contracts. She has testified for policy makers, including the Federal Trade Commission, and has briefed Congressional Staff. Her work has been cited in many media outlets including the New York Times, NPR, CNN, the Wall Street Journal, Bloomberg, the Economist and the Financial Times. You can follow her on Twitter @mioana.